7) Give an account of the relationship between ethics and law.

Answer: Ethics and the law are intertwined. Although much of the law is based on ethical standards, not all ethical standards have been enacted as law. The law establishes a minimum degree of conduct expected by persons and businesses in society. Ethics demands more.

Sometimes the rule of law and the rule of ethics demand the same response by a person confronted with a problem. In some situations, the law may permit an act that is ethically wrong. In some others, the law demands certain conduct, but a person's ethical standards are contrary.

54) Explain the two principles on which the universal rules of Kantian ethics are based.

Answer: The universal rules of Kantian ethics are based on two important principles:

- (1) Consistency—that is, all cases are treated alike, with no exceptions—and
- (2) Reversibility—that is, the actor must abide by the rule he or she uses to judge the morality of someone else's conduct. Thus, if one makes an exception for oneself, that exception becomes a universal rule that applies to all others.

55) What is ethical relativism?

Answer: Ethical relativism holds that individuals must decide what is ethical based on their own feelings about what is right and wrong. Under this moral theory, if a person meets his or her own moral standard in making a decision, no one can criticize him or her for it. Thus, there are no universal ethical rules to guide a person's conduct. This theory has been criticized because action that is usually thought to be unethical would not be unethical if the perpetrator thought it was ethical. Few philosophers advocate ethical relativism as an acceptable moral theory.

75) Give an account of the social responsibility of businesses. List its four main theories.

Answer: Businesses do not operate in a vacuum. Decisions made by businesses have far-reaching effects on society. In the past, many business decisions were based solely on a cost-benefit analysis and how they affected the bottom line. Such decisions, however, may cause negative externalities for others. Social responsibility requires corporations and businesses to act with awareness of the consequences and impact that their decisions will have on others. Thus, corporations and businesses are considered to owe some degree of responsibility for their actions. The four theories of the social responsibility of business are maximize profits, moral minimum, stakeholder interest, and corporate citizenship.

76) What is the moral minimum theory in the social responsibility of businesses?

Answer: Some proponents of corporate social responsibility argue that a corporation's duty is to make a profit while avoiding causing harm to others. This theory of social responsibility is called the moral minimum. Under this theory, as long as business avoids or corrects the social injury it causes, it has met its duty of social responsibility. The legislative and judicial branches of government have established laws that enforce the moral minimum of social responsibility for corporations.
