123. Briefly explain the main generational groups of consumers that marketers consider.

Baby boomers are the main reason for the greying of North America. During the baby boom (between 1946 and 1965), families had an average of 4 children versus the current average of 1.54. Generation X is the group of people born after the baby boomers, between 1966 and 1980. Generation Y is the group of people born between 1981 and 2000. These are mostly children of baby boomers, and are also referred to as the echo boom or millennials. Generation Z is the group of people born in 2001 and beyond. They have grown up with the Internet, and as pioneers of social media are considered the most disruptive of the generations.
