Material culture refers to the physical or tangible human creations, such as cars or clothing. Nonmaterial culture is the abstract or intangible creations such as values, norms, and beliefs. |

127. Define the difference among instincts, reflexes, and drives.

ANSWER: An instinct is an unlearned, biologically determined behavior pattern common to all members of a species that predictably occurs whenever certain environmental conditions exist.

Humans do not have instincts. A reflex is an unlearned, biologically determined involuntary response to some physical stimuli. Drives are unlearned, biologically determined impulses common to all members of a species that satisfy needs such as sleep, food, water, and sexual gratification. Reflexes and drives do not determine how people will behave in human societies.

128. Discuss how culture may be both a stabilizing force and a source of conflict in societies.

ANSWER: Culture can be an enormously stabilizing force for a society because it provides a sense of continuity as well as guidelines for behavior. However, culture can also be a force that generates discord, conflict, and even violence. Various cultural components create or help to sustain boundaries between groups of people.

129. Explain the Sapir-Whorf hypothesis and its implications for understanding human language.

ANSWER: Anthropological linguists Edward Sapir and Benjamin Whorf suggested that language not only expresses our thoughts and perceptions but also influences our perception of reality. According to the Sapir-Whorf hypothesis, language shapes the view of reality of its speakers. The implication of the hypothesis is that language determines thought. If people are able to think only through language, then language must precede thought and will determine perception.

130. Define values and norms, emphasizing the difference and relationship between the two.

ANSWER: Values are shared collective ideas or standards for what is considered good or bad, acceptable or unacceptable, right or wrong. Values are criteria used to evaluate people, events, and things. Norms are guidelines or established rules for behavior. They are influenced by values, but norms are not always consistent with professed values.

131. Contrast ideal culture and real culture and provide examples of each.

ANSWER: Sociologists stress that a gap always exists between ideal culture and real culture in a society.

Ideal culture refers to the values and standards of behavior that people in a society profess to hold. Real culture refers to the values and standards of behavior that people actually follow. For example, we may value honesty, yet tell lies under different circumstances. People may claim to be law-abiding, yet drive over the speed limit.

132. Explain the concept of cultural lag.

ANSWER: All parts of culture do not change at the same pace; material culture changes more rapidly than nonmaterial culture, resulting in a gap between the two. Sociologist William Ogburn referred to this disparity as cultural lag—a gap between the technical development of a society and its moral and legal institutions.

133. Define cultural diversity and contrast homogeneous societies with heterogeneous societies.

ANSWER: Cultural diversity refers to the wide range of cultural differences found between and within nations. Cultural diversity between countries may be the result of natural or social circumstances. Some nations (such as Sweden) are referred to as homogeneous societies, meaning that they include people who share a common culture and who are typically from similar social, religious, political, and economic backgrounds. By contrast, other nations (such as the United States) are referred to as heterogeneous societies, meaning that they include people who are dissimilar in regard to social characteristics such as religion, income, or race/ethnicity.

134. Describe subcultures and countercultures and provide two examples of each.

ANSWER: A subculture is a category of people who share distinguishing attributes, beliefs, values, and/or norms that set them apart in some significant manner from the dominant culture.

Examples could include Native Americans, Muslims, music fans, and motorcycle enthusiasts. Some subcultures actively oppose the larger society. A counterculture is a group that strongly rejects dominant societal values and norms and seeks alternative lifestyles. Examples of countercultures include members of nonmainstream religious sects, or cults, and groups such as the Ku Klux Klan, militias, neo-Nazi skinheads, and the Nation of Islam that may engage in revolutionary political activities.

135. Define culture shock, ethnocentrism, and cultural relativism, and explain the relationship among these three concepts.

ANSWER: Culture shock is the disorientation that people feel when they encounter cultures radically different from their own that leaves them unable to rely on previously taken-for-granted assumptions about life. Ethnocentrism is the term for the practice of evaluating other cultures according to our own cultural practices and beliefs. It is often based on the assumption that one's own way of life is superior to that of other people. Cultural relativism is the belief that the behaviors and customs of any culture must be viewed and analyzed by the culture's own standards. Ethnocentrism has positive aspects (e.g., patriotism) whereas cultural relativism may have negative consequences if taken to extremes (e.g., justification for violations of human rights).

136. Identify and compare the various forms of popular culture discussed in the text.

ANSWER: A fad is a temporary but widely copied activity followed enthusiastically by large numbers of people. Most fads are short-lived novelties. There are different types of fads: (1) object fads are items that people purchase despite the fact that they have little use or intrinsic value, such as trading cards or bracelets promoting social causes; (2) activity fads include pursuits such as body piercing and diet fads; (3) idea fads are ideological, such as New Age ideologies; and (4) personality fads are those surrounding celebrities like Kim Kardashian and Lady Gaga. A fashion is a currently valued style of behavior, thinking, or appearance that is longer lasting and more widespread than a fad. Examples of fashion are found in many areas, including child rearing, education, arts, clothing, music, and sports.
