100. Describe the three levels of organizational culture and their relationship to each other.

ANS:

Level 1 is behavior, meaning the actions employees take.

Level 2 is values and beliefs. Values represent the way people believe they ought to behave and beliefs represent if-then statements.

Level 3 is assumptions, meaning the values and beliefs that are deeply ingrained as unquestionably true. Values, beliefs, and assumptions provide the operating principles that guide decision making and behavior.

102. Describe how the nine external environmental factors can affect the internal business environment.

ANS:

Customers decide what products the business offers, and without customer value, there are no customers or business. Competitors' business practices often have to be duplicated in order to maintain customer value. Poor-quality inputs from suppliers result in poor-quality outputs without customer value. Without a qualified labor force, products and services will have little or no customer value. Shareholders, through an elected board of directors, hire top managers and provide directives for the organization. Society, to a great extent, determines what are acceptable business practices and can pressure business for changes. The business must develop new technologies, or at least keep up with them, to provide customer value. Economic activity affects the organization's ability to provide customer value (for example, inflated prices lead to lower customer value). Governments set the rules and regulations that business must adhere to.

104. Compare the three levels of moral development.

ANS:

At the lowest level of moral development, the preconventional level, behavior is motivated by self-interest and people seek rewards and attempt to avoid punishment. At the second level, the conventional level, behavior is motivated by a desire to maintain expected standards and live up to the expectations of others. At the highest level, the postconventional level, behavior is motivated by a desire to do the right thing, even at the risk of alienating the group. The higher the level of moral development, the more ethical one's behavior.

108. Identify and define the three levels of corporate social responsibility. Give at least one example for each.

ANS:

Legal CSR focuses on maximizing profits while obeying the law. The example given in the text was tobacco companies selling cigarettes, which are legal.

Ethical CSR focuses on profitability and going beyond the law to do what is right, just, and fair. The example given in the text was the decision by CVS to stop selling cigarettes, even though the result is an estimated loss of $2 billion a year in revenue.

Benevolent CSR focuses on profitability and helping society through philanthropy. The examples given in the text included corporate donations to colleges and universities by companies such as Microsoft. Students' examples may differ.
